

Healthcare – Legal Solution

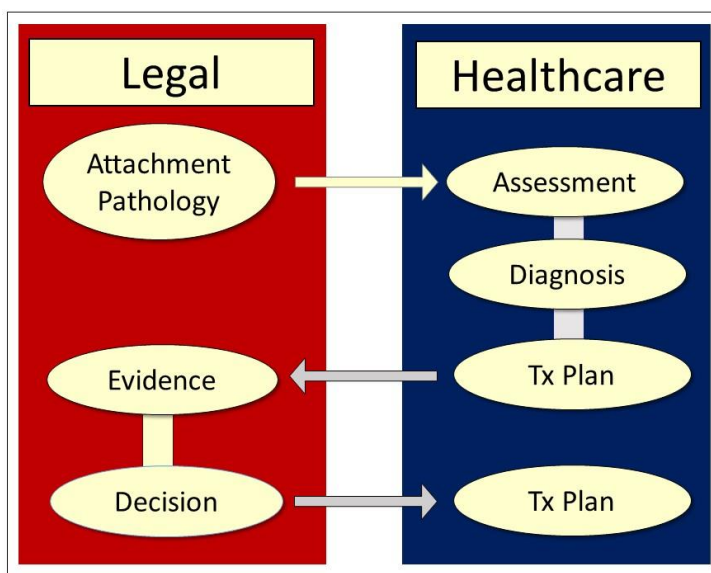

The legal and healthcare systems are two separate and co-equal systems.

They do different things using a parallel structure.

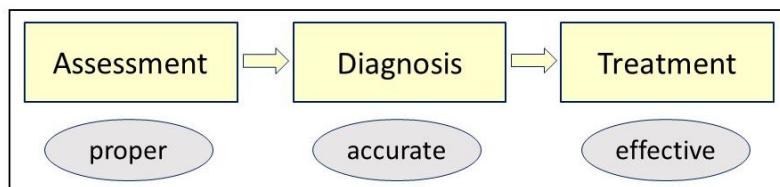

Mental health pathology needs to be passed from the legal system to the healthcare system for a diagnosis and treatment plan.

Once a diagnosis and treatment plan is obtained from the healthcare system, then this is passed back to the legal system as evidence for its decision.

A proper assessment to reach an accurate diagnosis to guide the development of an effective treatment plan is needed.

The appellate system in healthcare for a disputed diagnosis is 2nd opinion.

The diagnosis will be disputed. Rather than a sequential diagnosis that extends the time, a simultaneous 2nd opinion can be obtained through professional telehealth consultation.
