Dear Dr. Craig Childress:

The American Psychological Association Ethics Office acknowledges receipt of your recent submission in which you inform us of your intent to file complaints with various licensing boards and the AFCC.

You are correct that we do not accept complaints against members who are licensed or if there is another entity that can review and discipline the conduct. Should a state licensing board or other appropriate entity take a serious action against an APA member, the Ethics Office can review the action under a separate process.

For information concerning our ethics process, please review the Ethics Committee's Rules and Procedures located online at: <https://www.apa.org/ethics/committee-rules-procedures-2018.pdf>.

Sincerely,

The APA Ethics Office
